Media release

Swiss Structured Products Association (SSPA):

Daniel Haerberli new Head Legal & Regulation

Daniel Haerberli, Attorney-at-Law at Homburger AG, will be assuming the function of Head Legal & Regulation on 1 January 2017 at the head offices of the Swiss Structured Products Association. He is succeeding Enrico Friz, who is taking up new challenges, after having worked for the Association for around ten years.

Zurich, 21 December 2016. Daniel Haerberli, Attorney-at-Law and Partner at the distinguished law firm Homburger AG and who works in the practical banking and financial market law team, will be joining the SSPA on 1 January 2017 as the new Head Legal & Regulation. Thanks to his long-standing activity in the structured products field, he has extensive knowledge of the industry and has first-hand experience of the legal and regulatory challenges facing the industry through his day-to-day work. For over 15 years at Homburger, Daniel Haerberli has supported Swiss and non-domestic financial institutions in conjunction with the structuring, documentation and sale of structured products. This means that he is very familiar with the regulatory and legal operating conditions in Switzerland.

"With Daniel Haerberli we have been able to secure the services of an extremely skilled and acknowledged legal expert in the field of structured products for the function of Head Legal & Regulation. Thanks to his broad experience and his in-depth knowledge of national as well as international statutory and regulatory operating conditions, he will be able to provide the Association and its members with optimum advice as well as important impulses for the further development of the industry," said Georg von Wattenwyl, commenting on the changes at the head offices of the SSPA.

After ten years as the valued Head Legal & Regulation at the SSPA, as well as around 20 years of work as an independent attorney-at-law at Walder Wyss, Enrico Friz has now decided to take up a new professional challenge and to act as General Counsel of the Vontobel Group with effect from 1 January 2017. He helped to shape the development of the Association, and was a much sought-after and valued interlocutor for members, public authorities and the media. The SSPA thanks Enrico Friz for his tremendous contribution, and continues to wish him much success.

About structured products

Structured products are investment instruments publicly issued by an issuer whose redemption value is derived from the performance of one or more underlying securities. Equities, interest rates, foreign exchange or commodities such as gold or oil may serve as underlying securities.

About the Association

The Swiss Structured Products Association (SSPA) is the first port of call for all questions associated with structured products. It represents the collective interests of the key market players who bring together over 95 percent of the market volume for structured products in Switzerland. The headquarters of the association are located in Zurich. Further information is available at www.svsp-verband.ch.
