Credit spread	Credit spread refers to the difference between the risk-free interest rate and the market rate a debtor is obliged to pay. There are one- and five-year spread durations (wcds: world credit default swap pricing matrix). Credit spreads concern the provider of security, usually the parent company. Exceptions are listed below.
*keep-well agreement	Support agreements, sometimes referred to as keep-well agreements, are not direct guarantees. Support providers promise to support issuers by, for instance, readying funds for redemption or payouts should the issuer be in default. Important:	Please note that issuers' credit ratings and spreads are only one of several criteria influencing the choice of a structured product. The information below should not be considered investment advice, nor does it constitute an offer or recommendation to buy or sell a product or take the place of a person-to-person consultation. Rather than investing in a single product, we recommend diversification. This prevents a single product in an investment portfolio from gaining too much weight, and in cases of default having too great an effect on the portfolio's overall value. Rating and credit spread information is provided by issuer. The SSPA and the issuers listed are in no way responsible for the completeness or accuracy of the information. No special verification procedures were performed.
